Part 6 - 'Sunflower'

By Anita Gibney

Part Six already! That means we are halfway through our Memento year.

I had originally intended for the sunflower to be August's square, but I've seen so many beautiful pictures popping up on social media I just had to move it to July.

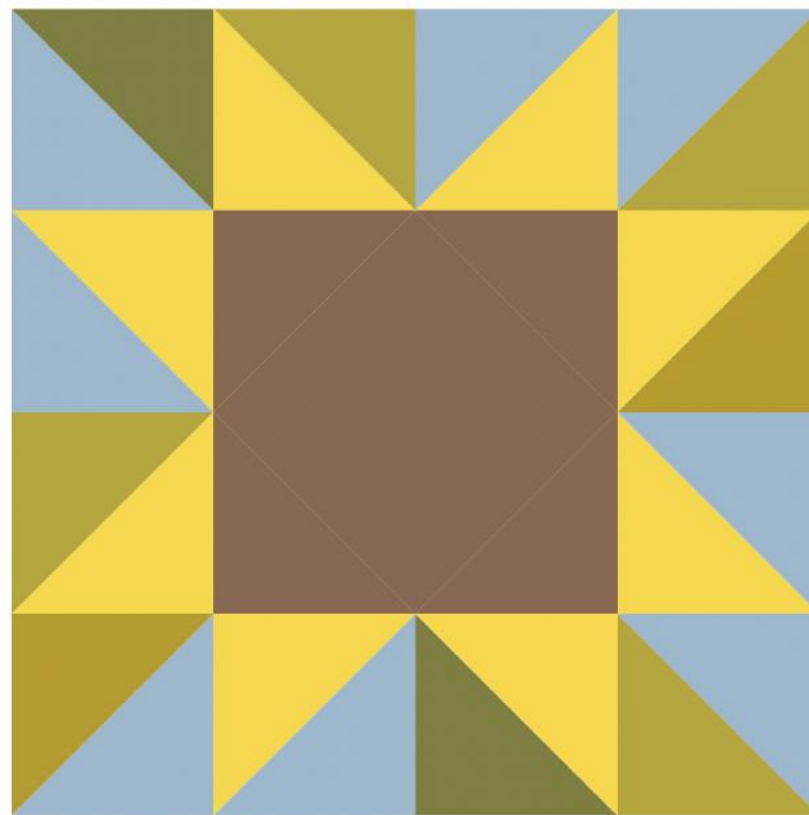

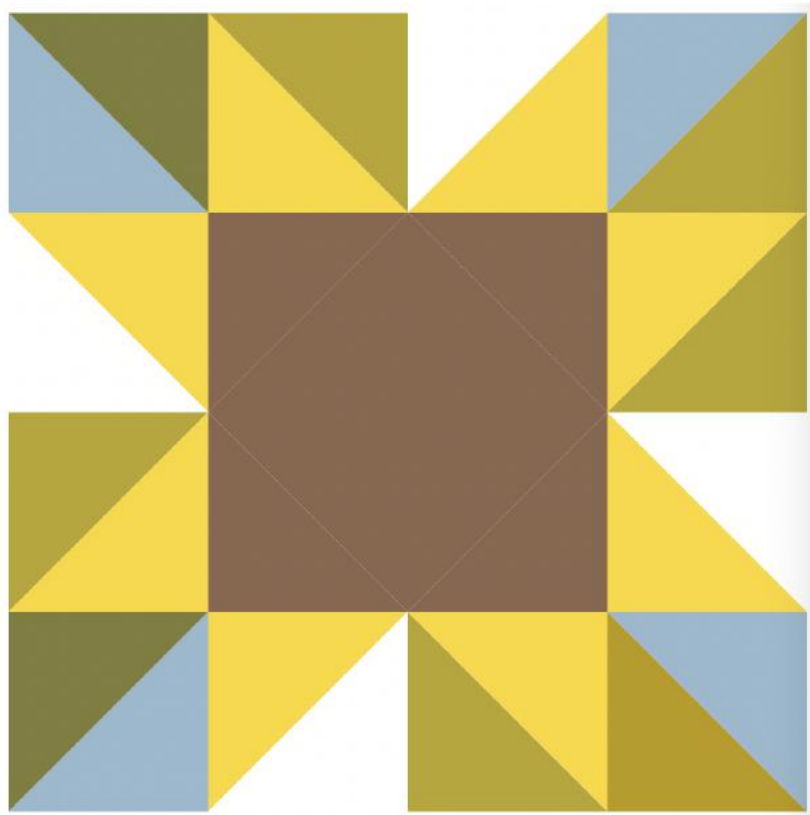

I don't have much to report about the yarns I am using this month, except to say that one of the pale blues is the very last bit of one of the first balls of yarn I bought when I started to crochet in 2013.

Please remember to share your lovely squares with me on Instagram @madebyanita. I really love to see them.

I made two layouts this month. It was really hard to choose between them and I wish I'd made the all blue one now!
